INTRODUCTION

The workshop was designed to prepare students for the corporate world by focusing on communication, confidence building, resume writing, interview preparation, and professional development. The sessions were highly interactive and included discussions and practical activities, shared by Deloitte professionals. The workshop provided valuable insights into the expectations of recruiters and the essential skills required to succeed in today's competitive job market.

KEY LEARNINGS

One of the major topics discussed during the workshop was the importance of soft skills. The speakers explained that technical knowledge alone is not sufficient for career success. Skills such as effective communication, teamwork, adaptability, problem-solving, leadership, and professionalism play an equally important role in the workplace. These qualities help individuals collaborate efficiently and contribute positively to an organization. The workshop also emphasized building self-confidence. Various activities were conducted to help participants step out of their comfort zones, interact with new people, and express their ideas without hesitation. These activities demonstrated that confidence can be developed through continuous practice and active participation. Another important concept introduced was the 7 C's of Communication, the speaker explained that following these principles helps in delivering messages effectively and avoiding misunderstandings in both personal and professional communication. The workshop also introduced the STAR technique, a structured approach used to answer behavioural interview questions. STAR stands for Situation, Task, Action, and Result. Participants learned how to present their experiences in an organized manner by describing the situation, explaining the assigned task, detailing the actions taken, and highlighting the final outcome. This method helps candidates communicate their achievements confidently and professionally during interviews. An engaging part of the workshop involved group activities that encouraged teamwork, leadership, communication, and decision-making. These activities required participants to collaborate with others, exchange ideas, and solve problems collectively. Such exercises helped improve interpersonal skills while encouraging students to overcome hesitation and develop confidence in interacting with unfamiliar people. The Deloitte professionals explained the roles available in consulting, technology, audit, risk advisory, and tax services. The session also covered the Deloitte placement process. The speakers explained the different recruitment stages, which generally include aptitude assessment, communication assessment, technical evaluation, group discussions (for certain roles), and personal interviews. Another valuable learning was the importance of writing an effective resume. The trainers recommended using power verbs such as Responsible, Contributed, Facilitated to describe accomplishments more professionally.

CONCLUSION

Overall, the Deloitte employability skills workshop was highly informative and inspiring. It provided practical knowledge on communication, confidence building, resume enhancement, interview preparation, teamwork, and professional growth.
